Who Are the 25 Most Prominent Citizens of America?

If you had to pick out the 25 representative names among the citizens of America, whom would you select? Something, of course, would depend upon your personal, political or religious bias, something upon your mental outlook upon the world. Your list would therefore be in some sort a reflection of yourself. The World has interviewed a number of prominent Americans on the subject and the result presents a curious psychological study.

The Burden Family at Newport, R. I.

The leaders of social life at Newport this season are the family of which I. Townsend Burden is the representative head. Mr. Burden, who owns a large part of Troy, does not believe in hoarding his capital even in these hard times. He keeps open house, he entertains lavishly. This social philanthropist and his charming family are graphically portrayed with pen and pencil.

The Best Girl Swimmers at the Beaches. The summer girl is the butt of the would-be humorist. But she is not always the listless thing she has been painted. Many of her, for example, are daring and expert swimmers. The portraits of the most noted of these naiads, with anecdotal details, will form a feature of The Sunday

Miss Jeannette Gilder is known as a literary critic. She will exhibit herself in a new light in a slashing review of the fashions now prevalent, pouring the hot vials of her wrath on the monstrosities now coming or actually in vogue. The series of interesting experiences will be continued in the novelist's experience, Mrs. Eva Wilder McGlassen detailing a unique episode in her own professional life.

A Week in a Matrimonial Agency.

An agency in this city furnishes expectant husbands with wives. Ladies are received and boarded here, their financial prospects are made a matter of record and they are introduced to would-be bridegrooms. Miss Marie Morris spent a week in this place posing as a $25,000 beauty. She had amusing experiences with dozens of suitors who nibbled at the golden bait, and has written them out for The Sunday World. Her disclosures will prove a bombshell to many men whom she met.

The Breckinridges of Kentucky.

No Southern family has given to this country so many distinguished soldiers, statesmen and men of affairs as that of the Congressman now involved in the famous breach-of-promise suit. No Southern family has a more romantic and interesting past. Both its past and its present are reviewed by prominent fellow-Kentuckian.

How Bookmakers Keep Accounts with the Public.

Almost everybody goes to the races, or wishes he had no conscientious scruples that prevent him from going. Everybody, especially the man with scruples, is interested in the bookmaker and his methods. The Sunday World has obtained a sheet representing a day's sport at Monmouth and showing the profits and losses of one day. It is an amusing glimpse behind the scenes.

The Chicago Fair from an Economic Standpoint. Mr. Edward Atkinson is one of the greatest of American political economists. He has visited the Columbian Exposition and he explains the sociological benefits which will accrue therefrom to the people of this country.

Poverty on the East Side. It does exist, and the fact will be demonstrated in a descriptive article in The Sunday World. A visit to the homes of the unemployed has been made, and the sufferings found there will move all hearts to pity.

The Children's Page. Full as usual of pictures and stories to turn the nursery into an abode of bliss. An article describing how the famous trainer, Karl Hagenback, brings up his animals in the way they should go will be read with open-eyed interest.

These are only a few of the salient features. But THE SUNDAY WORLD will not stop here. Its news columns will place you in direct communication with the entire globe; its editorials will throw additional light upon the news. The Summer resorts will be heard from; the news of the dramatic and sporting world will be laid at your feet.

THE SUNDAY WORLD.
